

Antitrust Enforcement and Government Interventions in Agricultural Markets – Case Study of Colombia

By Juan David Gutierrez, Andres Felipe Suarez Suarez - January 9, 2020

During the last 25 years, the Colombian competition agency has actively enforced antitrust laws in the agricultural sector. It is the antitrust authority in Latin America that has prosecuted the highest number of cases in agricultural markets. However, in Colombia, the enforcement of competition law has also collided with governmental mechanisms used to intervene these markets. This article traces the

ACCESS TO THIS ARTICLE IS RESTRICTED TO SUBSCRIBERS

Please sign in or join us
to access premium content!